

CALL FOR PROPOSALS

The Native American Student Advocacy Institute

April 19–20, 2010
The University of New Mexico
Albuquerque, N.M.

The Native American Student Advocacy Institute brings together a dedicated community of educators and tribal leaders to address the educational challenges facing American Indian, Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian students. We encourage you to share your knowledge by submitting a session proposal for the 2010 Native American Student Advocacy Institute.

Please consider submitting a proposal that showcases trends, new initiatives, effective strategies or best practices that affect your Native American students. We are especially interested in learning about:

- Keeping Native American students at the forefront of campus diversity agendas
- Creating partnerships between K–12 school systems and higher education institutions
- Raising expectations and academic achievement
- Preparing Native American students to enter a global economy
- Involving parents in education
- Using data to inform instruction

Preference will be given to proposals for sessions that:

- Highlight programs, services or policies that improve educational access and success for all students
- Include speakers from multiple institutions and/or regions
- Foster dialogue among educators from different professional areas
- Provide research and data to support claims and document outcomes
- Share best practices

Visit www.collegeboard.com/nasai/proposals for complete submission guidelines and to submit your proposal online. All proposal submissions are due Nov. 16, 2009.

Session presenters will receive a reduced registration rate. Notification of proposals accepted for the conference will be sent via e-mail in December 2009. For additional information, please e-mail nasai@collegeboard.org or call 408-367-1423.
